Traditional Sauna Benefits

General Usage

- Best results if used 4-7 times a week
- Session time: 10-20 mins (suggested)

Regular sauna use boosts circulation, strengthens heart function, and can lower the risk of cardiovascular disease by up to 65% while mimicking the effects of light exercise.

Sauna use helps reduce stress and cortisol levels, boosts mood through endorphin release, may improve sleep quality, and has been linked to up to a 65% lower risk of Alzheimer's disease and dementia.

Traditional saunas heat up to 185 degrees.

Infrared Sauna Benefits

General Usage

- Best results if used 4-7 times a week
- Session time: 15-30 mins (suggested)

Infrared saunas use far-infrared technology to heat the body directly, penetrating deep into muscles and joints at lower temperatures than traditional saunas. They contain no UV radiation, heat up quickly (about 15–20 minutes), and warm tissue from the inside out while keeping the surrounding air cooler and more comfortable.

Infrared saunas heat up to 120-150 degrees.
